run, particularly indoors. The Gate City Striders were invited to participate in a special relay as part of an All-Comers meet at Boston University on Jan 6, to see if we could set a new record.

I was able to hold on after my fast start in the race, and even though I think I slowed on each succeeding lap I managed a 6:38 which was on track for the record. At the end of my leg I remember approaching Eldon Burkinshaw who ran the second lap. But I don't remember anything about the actual baton pass. I guess he got it OK because I remember him speeding away from me. I was pooped.

Little did we have to worry about breaking the record with Eldon running a 6:16, amazing Jack Kick with a 6:08 and the "chairman of the boards", Bill Spencer with a 5:52 for an overall time of 24:55.7.

second!) Now all we need is to have our results accepted as a world record by the powers in charge. Maybe it won't be recognized because we were not tested for banned substances!

Bill Spencer remarked in Skip Cleaver's column in the Telegraph (Sunday Jan 14) that the track is highly banked and is made for speed and not distance. He's not kidding. I didn't have much trouble with the banked turns on my first lap when I was running relatively fast. As I slowed I had a lot of trouble even staying on the track during the turns. I kept sliding toward the infield as I ran and had to keep forcing myself to run higher in the first lane. It would have been a bitch if I had fallen off the track. I guess our team would have been disqualified. My biggest worries before the race were the turns and dropping

(This race was timed down to the tenth of a the baton at the hand-offs. Fortunately, as lead runner I only had to worry about one baton pass. Before the race Eldon and I discussed how we would make the exchange. As I said I have no idea how we actually did it. I just wanted to stop running!

> You remember the Women's Senior runner who made me look like a tortoise? After the race I saw their individual splits. She did something like 6:20 for her leg. The other three runners on the team were all over 7 minutes, I believe. They put their best runner against me to show me up---Some nerve.

In spite of the "banking crisis" I really enjoyed the experience of running the relay. It was an honor to participate with three runners like Eldon, Jack and Bill. Thanks for asking me. • a torrent now. Time telescoped into a series of churning legs, robbing me of all sensation even in the awful cold. And I waited...

There. Andrew had fallen back a bit from his early standing, but his strategy proved sound as he hung on for 31st. A hundred yards behind, Mike and unheralded junior Jeff Samson closed fast as our fourth and fifth runners. The rest of it was, as always, a sea of colors and spit and heaving bodies lunging past one another in fools' errands that meant the world, halfnaked on a day meant for curling up by the fire.

Rushing to the end of the chute, I collected our finish cards and gave congratulations and hugs all around. I didn't know where we stood, but there was no doubt the kids had left their last ragged breath somewhere in the final two hundred yards of the course. Whether our team total of 172 points would be good enough to place us in the top five was completely open to question: some years yea, others nay. All we could do was wait.

Meanwhile, the girls got ready to go. There was little chance of this senior-less team finishing better than tenth, but Alice and Ruby, if they finished in the top twenty-five, could advance to the Meet of Champions as individuals. Both had the resume and the stuff, but as we'd seen lots of times, nothing in this capricious sport was guaranteed.

Ruby, following my suggestions to the letter, hung around the top ten for the first kilometer, then worked her way methodically through the thinning pack over the hills, where she was at her strongest. Alice, almost inconsolable in her nervous fits all week, was just out of the top twenty-five at the halfway point; it was going to be awfully close.

Back to the finish line. Ruby shot into view in sixth. Incredible! She held off a hard charge by a fellow frosh to finish higher than any Brady runner in the State Meet since eventual New England champion Beth Clark won in 1977. And Alice, that determined paragon of self-doubt and discipline, had willed her way into 20th by the time she collapsed into the chute. More smiles and more tears. Their teammates ran, almost without exception, their best races of the season.

The awards ceremony was nearly as nerve-wracking as the pre-race tableau. I stood among the bundled-up kids and their parents as the announcer began to announce the top five teams. The growling winds whipped a locust swarm of leaves in a meaningless swirl.

"...in fifth place, with 196 points, Oyster River..."

"We did it," I muttered savagely. In a low voice, but not quietly enough to escape notice. I hadn't yet told the boys their point total. "We did? We did?" They were on me, babbling like pre-schoolers. I said, "Just listen -"

"...in fourth, with 172 points, Bishop Brady High School of Concord..."

Under the foreboding gray skies, minor pandemonium. A team laughably devoid of self-respect a year ago, one whose flagship functions had been playing ultimate Frisbee and wrestling in lieu of running, had advanced to the Meet of Champions for the first time in history. Such was the power of the moment that the parents could only look at each other like slack-jawed yokels as their kids erupted. And erupted again.

I was glad to be wearing sunglasses.

When I took the job of cross-country coach at Bishop Brady, I envisioned a compelling but dry series of workouts, statistics, and race results - wins and losses. I should have known better. The real rewards for me have come from watching the people on the teams develop as human beings as well as athletes, fearing nothing and growing beyond the bounds of their former limitations, scoffing at the idea that the practices I give them are too difficult, the hills too steep, the competition too fierce.

There is little immediate gratification in distance running. In contemporary society, things move at ever more frantic speeds and distractions are legion. Too many adults would rather find the solution to their needs and desires in a pill, a new marriage, or other quick fix. It is small wonder that the values of sacrifice and faith seem to have evaporated from youths' worldview. Not, evidently, at Bishop Brady.

Some days, in fact, I wonder who's getting the more important lesson – them or me.•
